Secret History of the Attempt to Relieve Sumpter.

We have this morning another leaf from the Secret history of the war. It will be remembered that in March last the Secretary of the Navy, in response to a resolution passed by that body, sent in several official documents to the United States Senate. Among others was a report from Capt. Fox. Assistant Secretary of the Navy, concerning the attempt to reinforce Fort Sumter in 1861. This report was, however, returned by the Senate to the N-vy Department as by the Senate to the N-vy Department as uncalled for by the resolution, a d now for the first time finds its way into print.

By It, the failure to reinforce Sumter is made to appear as having resulted from a "mistake" or misunderstanding between Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Welles. To briefly rnn over the facts as presented, Capt. Fox states that, after the return of the Star of the states that, after the return of the Star of the West from Charleston harbor, he proprosed a plan of relieving Sumter to Gen.

This was on the 6th of February. The General approved of the plan, and on the 7th introduced him to the Secretary of War, Mr. Holt, who agreed to present the matier to President Buchanan that evening. Upon the following day, the 8th, he called upon Gen. Scott, who then intlinated to him that probably uo effort would be made to relieve the fort. Captain Fox adds that he "seemed inuch disappointed and astonished." The natural intereuce is that the General had conversed upon the subject with President Buchanan, who placed a veto upon the en-terprise. Here the affair ended. On the terprise. Here the affair ended. On the 12th of March, one month and three days later, Postmaster General Blair sent for him 'Capl. Fox), and together they proposed to Mr. Lincolu the plan for reinforcing Sunter, which had been rejected by Mr. Buchanan. All three adjourned to Gen. scott's headquarters for a consultation. The latter now disapproved of the plan, saying to the President that it was practicable in February, but the increased number of batteries erected by the rebels at the mouth of Charleston had then, in March, rendered its ov us impossible. Still the Presi dent and Mr. Blair believed that the project could be carried out, and on the 19th of March, having obtained the necessary au-thority, Capt. Fox visited Fort Sumter, and learned from Major Anderson that the fort had sufficient supplies to hold out until th

15th of April.
While on his way there he fell ln with Mr. Holmes, of California, formely a mem-ber of Congress from South Carolina, and Lawrence M. Keitt. In reply to questions from the latter, the former stated that Fort Sninter was to be given np, adding, 'I have the highest authority for what I say," Up-on Kett asking who, Holmes leaned to-wards him, and whispered some one's name which Fox did not hear, owing to the sudden whisiling of the engine.

Returning from Charlestou to Washington, Captain Fox was summoned several times before the President, and on assuring him that the proposed plan was approved by Commodores Stringham and Stewart, whose opinions upon a naval matter should have more weight than General Scott's, who was versed merely in military matters, Mr.
Lincoln on the 4th of April decided to have the "thing put through." Only nine days remained until the 15th, when the supplies of Sunter would give out.

Preparations were pushed forward rapidly. Captain Fox's plan was to anchor vessels of war off the swash entrance to Charleston Harbor, as a base of operations, and from thence to send up men and sup-plies to the beleaguered fort. The Harriet Lane, Poeshontas, Pawnee and Powhatan were placed at his disposal by the Navy Department. Tugs and transports were also supplied, and, all preparations being completed, the expedition set sail in the second week of April, On arriving at the rendezvous off Charleston Harbor, on the 17th, Cantain Fox boarded the Pawnee inc. 17th, Captain Fox boarded the Pawnee immediately after arriving, and requested her Captain to convoy him to Fort Sumter, to which he was going to carry supplies. Captain Rowan replied that "his orders re-Captain Rowan replied that "his orders required him to remain ten inlies east of the light and await the Powhatan, and that he was not going in there to inaugurate civil war." He then applied to Captain Faunce, of the Harriet Lane, who accompanied him up the harbor. The rebels were shelling Sumter vigorously, and he put back to in-form Captain Rowan of the fact. He met the latter, however, who now informed him that he intended "standing into the harbor and sharing the fate of his brethren."

Captain Fox now delayed the operation ustil the Powhalan should arrive, when very much to his surpise he learned that Captain Rowau had received a note from Captain Rowau had received a note from Capt. Mercer of the Powhatan, dated New York, April 6, stating that he had been detached by orders of a superior authority from the Charleston expedition and sent lsewhere. On the 8th, two days after the date of this note, he, Captain Fox, had left New York, nt receiving any intimation of this

The Powhatan did not arrive, the fort was surrendered, and Major Anderson and his band taken to New York. On arriving here Captain Fox says he learned that when the Powhatan "was about to leave in obedience to the orders of the Secrelary of the Navy, two officers, Lieut, D. D. Porier, United States Navy, and Captain M. C. Meigs, United States Engineers, presented themselves on board with an order from the President of the United States, and whatever in commission and proceed immediately to the Gulf of Mexico. This order did not pass through the Navy Department, and was unknown to the Secretary of the Navy, and when signed by the President has was not conscious that his stranger.

pedition, President Lincoln gave an order to Lieut. Porter to take any vesset for his expedition, and he took the Powhatan. In other words, Mr. Lincoln did not know that Secretary Welles had designated the Powhatan for Capt. Fox, and Secretary Welles did not become aware that Mr. Lincoln had given any order to Lieut. Porter, Between the two Capt. Fox was denrived.

Between the two Capt. Fox was deprived of his man-of-war.

In a note to Capt. Fox, dated May I, the President relieves him all censure for the failnre of the expedition, and adds, by an accident for which you were in no wise responsible, and possibly I to some extent was, you were deprived of a war vessel with her men, which you deemed of great importance to the enterprise." Accompanying Capt. Fox's report is the Accompanying Capt. Fox's report is the correspondence between himself and the President, Gen. Scott and others, in regard to the expedition and the President's orders, acting under which Lieutenant Porter took the Fowhatan. In his recent speech at Clarksville, Md., Mr. Blair asserted that the President was led to issue the order by Secretary Seward, who did not wish Fort Sumter to be relieved. Sumter to be relieved.

This did not necessarily follow, however, pus Mr. Weed's delense of the Secretary of State is worthy of as much consideration as Mr. Blair's attack. The mere fact that Mr. Seward's name is attached to the order after the President's is the attached to the order after the President's is the attached to the order after the President's is the attached to the order after the President's is the attached to the order after the President's is the attached to the order after the President's in the attached to the order after the President's in the attached to the order after the president's in the attached to the order after the president's in the attached to the order after the order the President's is no argument that he was influential in having it promulgated.

A.—I learned from sources that I had every reason to believe to be true, that the young men of Vicksburg were armed to the teeth for the purpose of injuring, or, as they expressed it, killing officers of colored organizations, should an opportunity preorganizations, should an opportunity pre-seut itself. The mau from whom I learned this was himself armed, and one of the party at one time, fully determined in the matter, and I saw him once in a fast run culty occurred. Washington, Sept. 14.—Gen. Vanwick returns to New York to-night. He has been end avoring to obtain an order mustering out his old regiment, the 56th New York Veteran Volunteers. He regrets the mus tering out of so many colored regiments, because the veteran regiments are required to remain longer to do what could as well be done by them. He says, from his obser-vations in South Carolina, where he is on service, that the clamor of planters against colored troops is without foundation, and

It thus appears that after the Powhatan had been assigned by the Secretary of the Navy to Capt, Fox, for the Charleston exswered. General Fisk, Assistant Commissioner of he Freedmeu's Bureau, addressed a large assemblage of former slaveholders at Spring Hill, Tenn., a few days ago, and at the conclusion of his speech questions were asked him by the crowd, of which the following are samples: Q. If a man is hired, and does not work faithfully and honestly, what shall we do?

A. Reduce his wages, or discharge him.
I knew a man who became lazy, and only picked fifty pounds of cotton in a day. The other hands complained of him, and inisted that he should be docked in his wages. The next day, seeing what was oming, he picked two hundred pounds.

Q. But suppose a man refuses to work al-A. Treat him precisely as you would a white employee under similar

A. Let them be flogged. "He that spareth the rod spoileth the child."
Q. Shall we do it, if the parents will not?
A. By no means. I wouldn't want anybody to flog my child. Do lu this matter just as you would if the parents and children were white. If parents will not correct their children, get rid of them, and employ those who with.
Q. If I hire a lot of laborers, make a written contract with them, and it is ap-written contract with them, and it is approved by your agent, and when the time comes for the men to begin the work they hire out to some one else, what will you do?

A. I will compel the laborers to fulfill their contract strictly, and compel you to fulfill yours.

Q. It I work for a man, and he agrees to give me a third of the crop, and theu wheu the crop is made he refuses to give me the third, what shall I do?

A. Report the case to the nearest agent of the bureau, and he will see that the man performs his contract. Q. If a man hires us, and we make a crop, and then he sells it to another and runs off, who are we to look to for our

A. You have a lien on the crop Itself; that nust pay you every dollar due.

Q. It they burn down our schoolhouses, what is to be done? A. They must rebuild them; and more than that, Gen. Thomas will send a guard of colored soldlers into all such localities.

But I hope that will never be necessary Q. (A pale woman rises in the audience, and with deep emotion says,) I have lived on Z.'s farm all my life. He has used me as his wife. I have had live children, all of which are his, and now he is married, and wants to drive me and his children out of house and home. Is that right?

The General made some amusing remarks in relation to the refugees and uegroes in general; said he had far more trouble to get the refugees to work the refugees. trouble to get the refugees to work than the negroes, and related an anecdote of old

Nero that is too good to lose. Meeting Nero in town, with a load of millet, the General remarked: "How much of the crop do you get for your labor?" "One-third, sah," answered Nero. "And how much is one-third, Nero?" "Why, I takes two loads and leaves Massa Gymson one!" So endeth the freedman's catechism.

Maltory. The Richmond Republic, which recently erpetrated the ante-obituary of Judah P. Benjamin, now very neatly performs the same kind office for Mr. Mallory, late Secretary of what there was of the rebel navy.
The Republic describes him as an amiable gentleman, a sort of handsome figure-head for a man-of-war, but nothing else.

Mr. Mallory had a specialty, however, which kept the public from entirely disbelieving his existence. It was a strauge passion for creating rams, and then, after con-fining them for a while, and being unable to deliver them, offering them up no burntofferings. He was always building aud al-ways burning rams. He would have been au admirable Secretary of the navy in the inland German principality that Goethe speaks of, whose military force consisted of one Colonel, six officers and two privates. He might have held the same position with advantage in Prussia down to the acquisition of her single scaport of Kiel. He might even have answered for a lord of the admiralty in England at a time when it was the custom to order a midshipman to report for duty to a ship that was on the stocks and which was so long in building that the youngster generally became au old man with a dozen children before she was ready for sea. For a dry-dock department, or any other department of a saw-dust character, he would have been the right man in the right place. In the posi-ilon that he actually held, he entitled him-self to a pension from the United States. It would be entirely useless, however, for the Government to release him if they expect him to take the trouble to walk out of prison. It is impossible to disludge him from any place except by his own favorite process with Confederate rams—of blowing him up. Nothing but the explicit the him up. Nothing but the explosion that sent up the Confederacy could induce him to travel from this location.

Death of Judge Hallburton. Thomas Chandler Haliburton, better known to the world as "Sam Slick, the Clockmaker," is one of the two celebrated men whose deaths are announced by the last steamer. He was born at Windsor, Nova Scotia, ln 1796, was educated at King's Nova Scotia, In 1796, was educated at King's College, and was called to the bar in his mitive county. Subsequently he was chosen to the House of Assembly, and afterward filled the office of Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and of the Supreme Court, Nova Scotia. His first literary adventure gave him a name, when, in 1835, he contributed to a weekly paper a series of articles, designed to carricature the Yankee character under the title. "Lacabrations of Sam nider the title, "Lncubrations of Sam Slick, the Clockmaker." They were soon after collected in a volume, which, under the title of "The Clockmaker, or Saylings and Doings of Samnel Slick of Slickville," and Doings of Samnel Slick of Slickville," had a wide circulation both in England and the United States. His visit to England in 1842 produced "The Attache, or Sam Slick in England," in 2 vols., 8vo., which were subsequently increased to four. In 1858 Oxford gave the degree of D. C. L., and in 1859 he was chosen M. P. for Lauceston, as a Conservative. Since that time he has been a resident of England. Beside the works above mentioned he published been a resident of England. Beside the works above-mentioned, he published "Historical and Statistical Account of Nova Scotia," "Letters to Lord Durham," "Bubbles of Canada," "The Letter Bag of the Great Western," "The Old Judge, or Life in a Colony," "Rule and Mosrule of the English in America," "Nature and Human Nature," "Yankee Stories," and "Traits of American Humon." But none of his numerous works added much to the fame he derived from his first, and it is by that ne will lougest continue to be known.

The President has received, within the past few days, numerous letters from prominent citizens of Virginia, North Carolina and Mississippi, expressing apprehensions of insurrection by freedmen in those States. These letters the President referred to the Freedmen's Bureau for consideration, and Gen. Howard has issued a circular to Col Brown, Commissioner of Freedmen for Virglnia, recommending a patrol of citizens police system, to be under control of the lepartment commanders in counties where here are no agents of the Freedmeu's Bu-rean,—Washington dispatch.

Whatever course the President may con Whatever course the President may conclude to take, we do not believe that Gen. Howard will consent, a least without protest, to establishing a patrol of pardoned rebels, to tyrannize overthe freedmen under the pretext of preventing an insurrection. The Institution of such a police system would, in effect, be re-establishing slavery. The sort of justice the freedmen would receive at the hands of armed rebels would. ceive at the hands of armed rebels would be of a barbarous description. This talk of negro insurrection is humbug. The blacks have no intention or desire to revolt. All they want is fair play and decent treatment. But the "Democratic" rebels must give up the pastime of unrefering them "to spire the Yanks." There is a possibility of pushing this sort of sport too far. Self-defense is the first law of usture. The patient, long suffering, docide and hurmless blacks long suffering, docile and intrinless blacks may be driven by persecution and assassination to the point of turning on their oppressors and striking back. The pollee needed, is not to help the rebels abuse the freedment, but to restrain them therefrom and to punish them therefor; and if Mr. Johnson does not know it already, it is high time that he was correctly informed.—Chiego Tribune -Chicago Tribune.

News of the Day.

Pennsylvania claims to have furnished half a million of men to the army and navy during the war. In 212 towns in Vermont, 193 Unionists and 12 Democrats have been chosen to the Legislature. It is stated that the report that all the troops were to be withdrawn from the South soon, is without foundation. The colored people of North Carolina are to hold a convention at Raleigh on the 9th instant. A number of prominent gentlemen have been invited to participate.

Dr. I. C. Bates, of Georgia, the humane surgeon, who attempted to relieve our prisoners at Andersouville, has been appointed United States Tax Commissioner for Georgia.

ocratic candidate for the United States Sen-ate in Ohio. He is stumping the State with General Morgan, the candidate for Governor. They stand about an equal chance of an election. The Massachusetts Republican Convention adopted a resolution recognizing the eminent services of Richard Cobden and John Bright to this country during the war, and expressing regret at the death of the " Gen. Joe Johnston has been defeated as a andidate for President of the Richmond and Danville railroad. A majority of the stockholders voted for him, but the large vote of the State was cast against him. A Mr. Buford was his successful competitor. The Alabama Constitutional Convention assembled at Montgomery last Tuesday. Ex-Senator Fitzpatrick was chosen President. Gov. Parsons administered the oath to all the members. At the begining of the war Senator Fitzpatrick withdrew from resentatives, but he has taken no active part in the rebellion. By the close of the year the navy will only have as many vessels in commission as at the commencement of the war. But three iron clads will be retained in the service, one at Charleston, South Carolina oue at New Orleans, and one at San Francisco. The rest will be laid up in Delaware

Congress with the bulk of Southern Rep-

Bay, below Phlladelphia. Secretary McCulloch has written a letter in reply to the Bankers' meeting, in New York, a few days ago, in regard to the sysfork, a few days ago, in regard to the system of redeciuing national bank notes by national banks, favoring the plan suggested by the meeting. He says national banks should redeem their notes at commercial centers. The telegraph attempted to furnish us with a portion of the letter last night, but it was so mutilated that no sense could be made of it.

The Augusta Chronicte says arrrange ments are in progress to colonize ten thou-sand acres of land in one county in Georgia, upon the plan of offering extra Induceents to emigrants to settle on it. The Secretary of the Treasury feels it necessary to curtail the expenses of collecting the custom on imports. There are in most of the custom houses, as in bee-bives, drones, or shirks, which the Department is determined to get rid of, and with that view examinations are being made at the different custom houses throughout the United reau. The General admits to having gone States, to ascertain whether there are any services can be dispensed with.

Trial of Magruder.

But one witness was examined yesterday before the Commission engaged in the trial of Magruder. The prosecution, we understand, is about through. Below is the testimony of Alphonso Kirk in relation to the murder of Capt, McCormick and Surgeon Shirk, of a Pennsylvania regiment, in De-

MURDER OF CAPT. M'CORMICK AND DR. SHIRK.

Alphonso Kirk, farmer, living near Tay-lorsville, being sworn, testified: Was at Mr. Griggby's house in the latter part of December, 1864, when two men were killed; two Federal soldiers came to Griggby's—Capt, McCormick and Surgeon Shirk: the brother of Capt. McCormick, a colonel, had been sick at Griggby's house about a year before that, and the Captain had, at his brother's request, called to pay his respects to the family; they were expecting to have a parly that night, and a lot of young ladles and gentlemen were in the parlor; while they were in there the bell rang, and directly Shirk and McCormick were shown into the parlor by the servant; they had not been in prinutes when the black woman came in and said the house was surrounded by guerrillas; Cousin Billy Griggby's sister said she had seen three coming over the fence when she was looking out of the window, but she did not know but that they Federal soldiers; the black woman said the guerrillas had said, "there were two damned Yankee horses," and theu com-ntenced jumping over the fence and the surrounded before Federal officers knew anything about it; I went out and saw some of them run around the house; I knew some of the guerrillas; some of them were of Pratt's men; Shirk wanted to surrender; Lyon's command was to surrender; Lyon's command was reported in the country, and there were a good many Federal soldiers at Bardstown, good many Federal soldiers at Parasson, sent there to meet him; Surgeon Shirk and Captain McCormick had just come up and had come out to see Mrs. Griggby's family; the Surgeou wanted to surrender, and thought they would be Ireated as prisoners of war; McCormick said he would uever surrender; tthe guerrillas bolted into the house, and commenced firing; I was at one f the hall and the guerrillas at the the two Federal soldiers had come out of the family room into the front room: I don't know whether they crept under the beds or were under the bed clothes or not, but after the guerrilas left I went into the room and found the beds all forn to pieces I don't know who did it; the guerrillas may be did in looking after them; I think they shot Shirk as soon as they opened the door; Captain McCormick went into the family Captain McCormick went into the family room again, and they were shooting at him there; he came out into the hall and said to Mrs. Griggby, "they have shot me all to pieces," and he tell down at her feet, and she asked them not to shoot him any more; I recognize the prisoner; saw him there that day; he was in the house; I could not say whether he shot any or not; there were so many shoooting; there were a good many people in the house who had surrendered, but they could not get out; the guerrillas were between the negro cabins and the house, and they were afraid that some of house, and they were afraid that some of the people in the house would be shot, and they had to look out for themselves; Ithink Magruder was among the first two or three that came into the house first; I know Mer-riman; he was there, I think he came in with Magruder; saw Dr. Shirk and Captain McCormick after the guerrillas left; they were dead; at the time Shirk fell he had an apple, and he was lying on the floor with the apple in his hand; McCormick was shot twice in the face; I had seen Magruder often before that in Taylorsville; couldn't tell how they were dressed on that day; they were dressed in so many different ways at different times that I could not keep the run of them; I think McCormick fired once.

NEGRO DESTINY.

We notice ln certain journals of the coldblooded, pseudo-metaphysical type, pleasant speculations about the early extinction negro race on this continent. These speculations are always based on the history of the Indian tribes. These tribes have receded before the advancing wave of civillzation, until they have become a mere handful of thieves and cut-throats, hovering in pauperism, senillty and mallee around the frontler settlements of the Re- the white inhabitants of this country. public. Being an Inferior race to the Angio-Saxon, their fate is supposed to prefigure that of the African. Such speculations can' proceed from any scientific inductions. For, beyond the slugle fact of inferiority (which no man is competent to predict will be always a fact,) there is no analogy between the character and circumstances of the Indian, and the African. The former has proved himself an incurable savage. He despises labor, learning, and all the habits, arts, agencles, symbols and appur-'euauces of civilized life. He repels civilization, and regards its encroachment upon his domain as au affront demanding mortal vengeance. The consequence is a state of chronic war with his civilized neighbor. And his extinction therefore is as rapid and certain as the spread of civilized society. The Indian, as a race, bears moreover the marks of senility, worn-outness and decay. His stolidity, gravity, silentness, power to dissemble and to conceal his purposes and feelings, lack of hilarity, buoyancy, humor; of playful and social characteristics, are all indications of old age. We believe somewhat in the doctrine that races like individuals have their "seven ages," their childhood, youth, manhood and decline. And the characteristic symtoms of these several periods in Individual life are curlously visible in races. If now we look for the sign; of age in the negro, we shall find every possible characteristic of boyhood. He is gay, hopeful, frollesome, improvident, imitative, aspiring, sociable and irrepressible. He is fond of dress and show, inordinately gratified with praise, prone to look up to his superiors for guidance, and to regard such when they win his gratitude by friendliness with profound reverence and admiration. These are youthful traits. Every one who knows anything of the negro, knows they are prominently manifested in him. It was less an intentioual indignity than an unconscious instinct which begot the Southern recklessness of youth, than of the calculating depravity of veteran years. But, again, his attitude towards civilized ife, his estimate of its grandeur and desirableness, are exactly the reverse of the Indian's. He shudders at being driven into the wilderness by himself. He likes to loaf, but it is in the busy haunts of Industry and human activity that he desires to do it He has no love of solitude, and no intracta ble aversion to the methods and habits of the white man. On the contrary, he is busy in perpetual imitation of these hablts. The spectacle of freedmen of all ages crowding the school-rooms opened up to them by the noble philanthropy of "fanatics" is touching and profoundly instructve. The concurrently significant spectacle of their eagerness to possess, and diligence in cultivating land of their own is not less so. In these two particulars the traits of every alternate fifty acres of their the negro and the premonitory signs of his probable fate are as diverse and opposite to those of the Indian as cau be imagined. Pertinent to this subject is the following paragraph from a telegram sent over the country day before yesterday, glving some habit of calling negro men "boys." Even the vices of the negro partake more of the and Red rivers. The telegram says: He visited many of the settlements and He visited many of the settlements and plantations, incog., and in no single instance failed to discover evidences of advancement beyond his most sangnine hopes. They are industrious, and their highest aim is to get possession of small parcels of land to work for themselves, and in cases where they have accomplished this they have sairly amazed their old masters, the white conton growers, by the heavy crops they have got under way. Of course there are individuals in each community in there are individuals in each community in whom idleness and vice can't be overcome by the influence offered, yet these vicious drones are fewer in number than mean whites. Schools are plenty and flourishing among them. General Strong says the ease and eagerness with which old and young freedulen went through elementary text

ing their condition along the Mississippi

books was astonishing. Such facts of conduct are the very signs, the unmistakable ontward expressions of civilized aspirations. The race that exhibits them is not traveling towards extinction accomplished by a wholly different method slavery did. He threw himself across the track of civilization, and attempted by bloody and remorseless violence to check it in its all-conquering career. His attacks ultimated in inplacable warfare. Probably the civilizee has been somewhat to blame for this result. We cannot stop now to consider that question. Our point is that there is nothing in the character habits or antecedents of the negro which will be likely to provoke against him those destructive energies of civilization which have pushed the red man to the wall. He is not at war with civilization. But is struggling under grave and harrassing discouragements to assimilate, and to of grape that the price has been too high for copy after it. And he is no mo: e inclined to deliberately starve himself to death by The cultivation of the vine has been so indolence than other people. "But," you will say, "he is naturally lazy, and when not compelled to labor, he will be gradually shoved aside by his more industrious white neighbor." So are you lazy; so is every mortal born of woman. It is a fundamental characteristic of the natural beart. Persistent toil, is at first lrksome to yet to-day. every human being. The actual enjoyment of methodical industry, is "second" nature, an acquisition and not a native instinct. Human belogs do not make this acquisition except under the stimulus and pressure of adequate motives. Such motives could never be developed in a State of slavery. Neither can they be developed Henry carried off the prize, amld the under milder forms of oppression. Give the negro his liberty, all his inalienable rights, and the same chance you claim for yourself. FELICITATION.

Two editorial paragraphs in yesterday s Journal suggested to our mlnd certain curious and somewhat grave reflections; as we doubt not they will to the reader's on seeing them together.

No. I refers to the rumor that the President intends to withdraw United States troops from all the rebel States forthwith. A correspondent of the New York Herald is responsible for the rumor. The Journal says:

He announces that President Johnson contemplates the early withdrawal of all Federal troops from the States lately in repellion, assured, as he has been by numer people of the South have in good faith accepted the present position of affairs, and are ready to reorganize civil government upon the basis of universal freedom. This intelligence, if true, as we sincerely hope it is, should be railed with joy throughout the

No. 2 is as follows:

From all accounts, a perfect reign of ter-ror exists throughout the borders of Tennessee. Gangs of desperadoes are springing some of the most central countles over which they roam at will, committing all sorts of crimes, and defying the com-bined power of the Government and State. The fends between rebels and Unionists are also rendering the State a perfect Golgotha.

The query arises whether the Unionists who are fighting it out with the rebeis in the "Golgotha" aforesaid, are under particular obligations to "hall with joy" the intelligence that the little protection afforded them by the few troops left in that State, is about to be removed. For our part, we neither hail with joy nor receive with a particle of credence, the rumor from the New York Herald. Troops will be withdrawn from the late rebel States iu a gradual manner, by installments, and with exceeding caution. We believe the President has been a little over-confiding toward the Mississippians, but we shall "hail with joy" the evidence of our own mistake in that case. And we cannot doubt that the President will tarry a bit to watch the result of that experiment before repeating it.

STATE FAIR-FOURTH DAY .- The attend ance yesterday was the largest, we believe that has ever been on the grounds. The ample arrangements of the Louisville and Frankfort railroad were called into requisition to transfer the large crowd to the grounds. Long before ten o'clock large parties, made up by the citizens of the city and county, were on the grounds, eagerly bent on enjoyment. At POWER MALL The attendance was again very large, and the different specimenarticles of machinery were in full operation, surrounded by large crowds of admiring agriculturists. The Committee on Awards, appointed by the of the Weed; M. R. Shane, Knight of the Society, were also busily engaged in inquiring into the merits of the different articles. The exhibition in this hall shows that the arts of peace now claim the thoughts of most of our citizens. The agriculturist is busy building up the waste places made by contending armies, and developing the natural resources of our great country; the extension of commerce and manufactures; the Invention and application of new labor-saving machinery for the production of the necessaries and luxuries of life. The premiums in this hall will not be announced until to-day.

FLORAL HALL Again was this beautiful hall crowded with the beauty and fashion of our proud old Commouwealth, and the different artlcles on exhibition won the admiration and praise of every one. In the needlework department are some of the finest specimens ever exhibited and the Committee on Awards were at a loss to decide, Ageneral compliment was paid to all exhibitors, and attention, have alded in working out a glowe think the next year will develop more but exactly in the opposite direction. The tinest wine that has yet been exhibited was the Delaware, by Mr. Sackstider. This is the ditional wrinkle or a single gray halr to product of a vine that was discovered some miles from Philadelphia, and is believed to be purely American. It is a prolific vine and is superior to the Catawba, from the fact that it is not subject to mildew or rot. The wine produced from this grape have a fine taste, with a body superior to that of any American grape yet brought into notice. Mr. Sackstider is as yet the only manufac turer of this wine In Kentucky, which bids fair to surpass in quality any yet brought to the notice of the American grape growers. Such has been the demand for this species a general introduction by our vine growers. successful that the cost has been reduced. and the demand is far ahead of the supply Mr. S. also exhibited a very fine Venange wine that won the praise of many for its fine flavor, being noted as especially sweet.

The display of frults and flowers was better than yesterday and promises to be better THE EXHIBITION IN THE AMPHITHEATER Was fully equal to that of Thursday. Saddle horses that have always been an attrac tlon to the American people, were on exhlbitlon, and each ring was warmly contest ed. COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE UNION PRESS, FRIDAY EVENING, September 15, 1885.

Commercial affairs to-day were rather quiet in all depa thrents, yet we notice continued heavy supplies of Island sugars by wey of New York, including large receipts of Havena sugar in boxes. That is an excellent article, much used by manufacturers of caudy and pre-serving. The supply, since the war, has been very limitd. The receipts of dry goods continue targe, and the obbing trade in all departments is quite active. Among the receipts at the wharf to-day is a cargo of fire-brick, tile, and fire-clay, from Port-r's Landing, Vir-ginia-au in ispensible article for furnaces, cooking-

SYMPTOMS.

The Symtoms of Catarrh are at first very slight. Persons find they have a cold, then they have frequent at-tacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of tempera-ture. In this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterward thics and adhesive

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or conglid off. The secretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice thick and massi; the eyes are weak; the sense of smell I lesseued or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place. Another common and Important symptom of Catarrh is that the person is oblised to clear his threat in the morn-ing of a thick or aliny nucess, which has fallen from he head during the night. When this takes place the person
